

An abstract, vertical artwork on the left side of the page. It features a dominant purple color palette with swirling, organic shapes. A bright yellow vertical line runs down the left side, intersecting with the purple forms. The overall style is expressive and textured, resembling a painting or a digital collage.

enclave

Featuring Hilary Noble and Rebecca Cline

What They Are Saying About Hilary Noble and Rebecca Cline: Enclave

"Enclave gets my vote for the best jazz CD of the year. It's fun and intellectually challenging, flawlessly performed yet marked by a spontaneous elan."

–Norman Weinstein, allaboutjazz.com

"This is such a refreshing record. Provocative, passionate playing over consistently stimulating tracks."

–Tony Hall, Jazzwise Magazine

"Whereas most latin jazz gravitates toward siesta, leave it to a couple of Yanks to shake things up."

–Tom Hull, Village Voice

"The playing is hard-hitting...Noble and Cline have technique to burn...[Noble] often recalls David Murray and Pharoah Sanders. Cline is harder to pin down, although a Latinate McCoy Tyner comes to mind."

–Owen Cordel, JazzTimes

"The writing from the group is uniformly excellent, and the recording is unquestionably a hint of what's to come in jazz. Highly Recommended."

–Peter Watrous, descarga.com

"Enclave crosses new borders in Latin jazz, proving that things are often found, not lost, in translation."

–Tom Greenland, allaboutjazz.com

"Fiery and pulsating, this exhilarating set by Hilary Noble and Rebecca Cline blends the rhythmic excitement of Cuba and Brazil with adventurous post bop and free jazz... Dramatic, intense and burning with inner fire, this is music that makes the listener sit up and pay attention."

–Bruce Crowther

"Whether straight-ahead, Latin, avant-garde, or world music, these performances always hold one's interest, making Enclave a highly recommended example of modern 21st century jazz."

–Scott Yanow, allmusic.com

"Here's hoping we haven't heard the last of Noble and Cline as a team."

–Thomas Pena, latinjazznet.com

For booking information, call: 617.645.3216

Email: rbcline@yahoo.com

www.enclavejazz.com